Human Capital Services Tax

Mónica Sevilla is a partner in the Tax Department of Garrigues, where she has pursued her professional career since 1995. She specializes in the Human Capital Services practice and is in charge of that department in Cataluña. She provides advisory services in relation to compensation and benefits to both companies and individuals, and she has extensive experience in the design and implementation of compensation systems for executives and employees. Mónica has a degree in Business Administration from Universidad de Barcelona, where she participated in its EUS program.

Experience

Mónica Sevilla has been a partner at Garrigues since 2017, and is the head of the Human Capital Services area in Cataluña.

From this area, she provides comprehensive services in relation to compensation and organization of human resources, including the strategic implications and design, and all tax and legal aspects related to this type of services.

She has extensive experience in designing and implementing compensation systems and remuneration formulas for executives and employees, including incentives based on company value, long-term incentives and employee welfare systems, as well as in international assignment management.

She provides ongoing advisory services in relation to compensation and benefits at listed companies, private equity entities, multinational groups and family businesses. She participates on an ongoing basis in the design and implementation of remuneration packages for employees and executives in M&A transactions. Mónica provides advice to individuals and companies in inspection proceedings and litigation in relation to personal income tax and withholdings on salary income.
